

Career Foundations Teacher Training

For our job seekers with low literacy and education levels, quality employment opportunities can be extremely limited. However, we can overcome this challenge by providing clients with the education and training necessary to build their skills, access a quality, growing career path, and work their way to a family-sustaining income. This two-day train-the-trainer course will cover Career Foundations: Making Your Education Work for You, a curriculum jointly created by Women Employed and City Colleges of Chicago that helps adults reading at least at a 4th-grade level or who speak limited English to:

- assess their skills and interests
- explore locally-available career pathways
- choose a focus area or sector
- craft a plan and timeline to get to college- even if college isn't their immediate next step.

Come learn more about the Career Foundations curriculum, how to deliver it and help your clients ultimately plan for a sustainable, long-term career!
