FY 2018 omnibus rejects proposed cuts to workforce and education programs

Last night, congressional leaders rejected many of the proposed cuts to workforce and education programs that were included in President Trump's FY 2018 budget request, sending a clear signal about the bipartisan support for investments in skills as the economy grows. The House will likely pass the 2018 Omnibus spending package today, then the bill will move to the Senate for a vote. Read our full analysis here.
