

NATIONAL SKILLS COALITION

Every worker. Every industry. A strong economy.

You know it, we know it — but it's worth repeating: working people and businesses need real investments in workforce and education programs. Creating a strong, 21st century economy depends on helping hard-working Americans succeed in industries like medical technology, IT and software, advanced manufacturing, and in trades like plumbing and electrical.

We were hit with some disappointing news last week — President Trump's 2020 budget proposal would continue decades of stagnant or decreasing funding for workforce and education programs that would help families make ends meet and help businesses find qualified workers to fill open jobs.

Congress has the power to revitalize this funding, but they need to hear from you. Tell your members today to invest in workforce and education programs that leverage America's greatest asset: its people.
