Seattle Jobs Initiative releases guide for SNAP E&T advocates

Many states are looking for strategies to help people get the training and support they need to move into the workforce or advance within their career. Some states are using their SNAP E&T programs – and a combination of federal, state, local, and philanthropic dollars – to provide job training for SNAP participants.

A new guide released by Seattle Jobs Initiative, The SNAP E&T Advocates Guide, has advice on practical steps that advocates can take to help states make skills training an integral part of their SNAP Employment and Training (E&T) programs. Read more (and get the guide) over on our Skills Blog.
